

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A PhD journey is a long learning process. I owe to many people during this journey, all of whom I would like to acknowledge.

First of all, I would like to present my sincere thanks to my supervisors. I am greatly indebted to Professor Thomas Baum for the knowledge, patience, encouragement, unconditional support and guidance that he contributed so generously, and, in particular, to Professor Dora Scholarios for her help, support and understanding.

I would like to extend my thanks to Professor Dennis Nickson for his help and support.

Sincere thanks for the “gate keeper” and participants of the case study organisation for their cooperation during the fieldwork.

Many thanks for the Egyptian Culture Bureau in London for their effort and help. My appreciation is due to Alexandria University for funding me through the four years of my PhD.

Thanks for my friends in Egypt and UK for their emotional support and encouragement. My greatest gratitude to my family member back home for always pushing me forward.

And above all, I am really grateful to my husband and my little angel for their tolerance, patience and help during my long journey. “May God keep them safe for me”. This thesis is a result of your help, support and love which both of you show to me.

“This thesis is dedicated to my beloved Mum and Dad”
